A new face of beauty, wonder make-up brushes and powerhouse highlights. Spring, we're ready for you

#OBSESSED

When Gucci's creative director Alessandro Michele produces a fragrance, you know it's going to be luxurious, but also a little subversive. And Gucci Bloom EDP, £72 for 50ml, doesn't disappoint with its sophisticated floral bouquet (tuberose and jasmine), plus an indie twist of rangoon creeper, a south Indian flower used for the first time in perfumery to give the blend a powdery dirty-sexy vibe. This delicate scent isn't going to knock anyone out in the lift but it will make you more interesting to strangers.
